OIR CATALOG, TR CC 100-1, JANUARY 1957, PAGE 0-10

To equip the overseas returnee with an integrated picture of present Headquarters structure and activities, as they apply to his desk or Field assignment.

In the same reference, additional description of the course is:

PREREQUISITES	Top Secret clearance Operations course, or equivalent in Headquarters or Field experience Recent completion of a tour of duty abroad
ENROLLMENT	35 to 45
DURATION	Three weeks (total 120 hours)
LOCATION	Headquarters

The Clandestine Services Review (CSR) is designed to bring the case officer up to date on changes which have occurred in Headquarters during his tour in the Field. The course familiarizes him with the functions, procedures, organization, and operational programs of the DDP, gives a comprehensive view of the Agency support facilities which are available to him, and relates all these to Field operations. An important aim is to place the clandestine services (and the case officer himself) in the larger perspective of the Agency and its mission. It relates the role of the DDP to the intelligence functions of the DDI and the support functions of the DDS, explaining fully the activities of their component offices. It considers the Agency as a whole in the context of the intelligence community and of the entire government.

The course is presented in the form of lectures, panel discussions and tours through the Agency. Lecturers are those who are active in, if not actually heads of, the components discussed.

The course is not a substitute for any other course required by DDP instructions. Headquarters personnel are eligible with the approval of the Chief Instructor, but Training Officers should carefully consider the justification for these exceptions.
